E. M. PEASE.

On motion of Mr. Potter, the Secretary of the Senate was instructed to have two hundred and fifty copies of the captions of the acts passed at the present session of the Legislature, printed and distributed among the members of the Senate.

Mr. Taylor of Cass moved that the Senate adjourn, until the first Monday in July next, at 12 o'clock, when

The President addressed the Senate as follows—

SENATORS:—Before announcing the result of the motion which has been made, justice to my own feelings and to this body claim for me the freedom of a few remarks; an occasion so appropriate, I cannot permit to pass without offering you my warmest congratulations for the harmony and kind feeling which has at all times manifested itself in your deliberations. At the same time I would return my most sincere thanks for the deference and courtesy which has at all times been shown me since the commencement of my official connection with you. It has been no ordinary cause of gratification and pleasure to me to recognize amongst you many of those with whom I first entered on the theatre of political life, and still again those with whom I have been associated in every consecutive term it has been my fortune to serve. Another cause of gratification is the resolution I find on my table affording evidence of continued confidence and regard. I have only in return to offer assurance that long as time shall last and gratitude remain a redeeming virtue of our natures, associations past and present will be treasured in deep memory and deeper still as times unyielding tide shall day by day sweep the sands of life from beneath our feet.

My fondest hope is that in returning to your homes you may be able to present the record of your actions undefiled that with consciences pure as ermine—radiant and glowing as the spangled Heavens above us, that reward may be yours to which loftiness of purpose and the most exalted virtue alone can entitle you.

In this hour of our separation let us remember that there are many of our former co-laborers and associates who have been swept away by the unrelenting hand of time, that life's tenure is beyond our control, and that in the fulness of His providence it is left to God alone to work all things to the end His wisdom has appointed. I now pronounce the Senate adjourned until the first Monday in July next.
